

A: Individual Level: Inner Reflection and Personal Agency

- Feminist solidarity shows up in many ways; how does it live in your daily life? Whether through friendships, community care, or activism. What does standing in solidarity with others mean to you?
- Your voice matters and it deserves safety. What does online safety look like to you? How do you set boundaries, stay visible, and resist harm while engaging with others?
- Crisis presents losses and difficulties, while presenting some opportunities. What does the current crisis present to you?
- Activism is emotional terrain—what feelings do you carry with you? From grief to joy, rage to hope, how do these emotions shape your engagement, and how do you honor them along the way?
- What opportunities are emerging to shape a stronger/better/feminist future? How can we tap on to them?

B: Organizational Level: Culture, Practice, and Power

- What makes resilient organizations?" What values, relationships, and practices sustain feminist work in hard times?
- What should organizations start, continue or stop doing, as they navigate backlashes and funding cuts to sustain the important work they are doing?
- How can feminist spaces support those who speak out and challenge power?" Let's explore how we show up, share power, and build care systems.
- How can we reimagine leadership within our institutions to reflect feminist principles of care, inclusivity, and balance power?
- What opportunities are emerging for your organization to thrive out of this crisis? How will you tap into these opportunities?

C: Collective Level: Movements, Communities, and Imagination

- Dream together! What would a feminist future look like in your community?" What changes would make justice feel real?
- How can organizations reclaim their power when civic space is shrinking?" Imagine bold, connected resistance. How do we rise together today?
- How can we build strong feminist movements that grow across borders?" What would it look and feel like if we truly worked together in solidarity — guided by fairness, care, and shared purpose?
- How do we protect feminist gains in times of backlash? Explore strategies for resistance, resilience, and renewal.
- How do communities heal together after going through hard times? Let's explore how sharing stories, creating practices, and rebuilding can help us recover and grow.
- Imagine a feminist internet, what would it feel like?" Picture online spaces built on care, safety, consent, and real connection.

16 Days of Activism 2025

Against Gender-Based Violence

Theme: "Reimagining Feminist Futures:
Rising in Solidarity, Thriving out of Crisis"

Slogan:
Resist. Reclaim.
Reimagine

A: Individual Level: Inner Reflection and Personal Agency

- Feminist solidarity shows up in many ways; how does it live in your daily life? Whether through friendships, community care, or activism. What does standing in solidarity with others mean to you?
- Your voice matters and it deserves safety. What does online safety look like to you? How do you set boundaries, stay visible, and resist harm while engaging with others?
- Crisis presents losses and difficulties, while presenting some opportunities. What does the current crisis present to you?
- Activism is emotional terrain—what feelings do you carry with you? From grief to joy, rage to hope, how do these emotions shape your engagement, and how do you honor them along the way?
- What opportunities are emerging to shape a stronger/better/feminist future? How can we tap on to them?

B: Organizational Level: Culture, Practice, and Power

- What makes resilient organizations?" What values, relationships, and practices sustain feminist work in hard times?
- What should organizations start, continue or stop doing, as they navigate backlashes and funding cuts to sustain the important work they are doing?
- How can feminist spaces support those who speak out and challenge power?" Let's explore how we show up, share power, and build care systems.
- How can we reimagine leadership within our institutions to reflect feminist principles of care, inclusivity, and balance power?
- What opportunities are emerging for your organization to thrive out of this crisis? How will you tap into these opportunities?

C: Collective Level: Movements, Communities, and Imagination

- Dream together! What would a feminist future look like in your community?" What changes would make justice feel real?
- How can organizations reclaim their power when civic space is shrinking?" Imagine bold, connected resistance. How do we rise together today?
- How can we build strong feminist movements that grow across borders?" What would it look and feel like if we truly worked together in solidarity — guided by fairness, care, and shared purpose?
- How do we protect feminist gains in times of backlash? Explore strategies for resistance, resilience, and renewal.
- How do communities heal together after going through hard times? Let's explore how sharing stories, creating practices, and rebuilding can help us recover and grow.
- Imagine a feminist internet, what would it feel like?" Picture online spaces built on care, safety, consent, and real connection.

16 Days of Activism 2025

Against Gender-Based Violence

Theme: "Reimagining Feminist Futures:
Rising in Solidarity, Thriving out of Crisis"

Slogan:
Resist. Reclaim.
Reimagine